

Interbuild Warranty

Each solid finger-jointed wood panel is manufactured from selected material and is subject to stringent quality control procedures. The Company warrants that the products will be free from material defects in materials (Such as delamination of glue joints) and workmanship. The Company cannot be held responsible for their further maintenance and installation, which is dependent upon the standard of work of individual contractors and the end user. This warranty does not apply to products that have been subject to misuse, including neglect, accident, or modification, or that have been altered during assembly and are not capable of being tested by the Company under its normal test conditions. The Company's obligation for products failing to meet this warranty is to refund the purchase price of the nonconforming product, or to replace or repair the nonconforming products.
