PLEASE NOTE: Drying time depends on several factors:

- Thick or Thin Slices - the thinner the slice of item being dried, the quicker the drying time.
- Temperature - The lower the temperature the longer the drying time. When dehydrating fruits, vegetables and nuts, we recommend dehydrating at 105-110°F degrees to preserve enzymes and nutrients.
- Humidity - the higher the humidity, the longer the drying time
- Water content - the higher the water (liquid) content of the item being dehydrated, the longer the drying time.
- Crispness - some people like their dehydrated items still a bit soft, while others like it “crunchy or crispy”. If you want it more crunchy-crispy, it will increase the time it takes to dry all the water out.
- Product - Of course the product being dehydrated also will dictate how long it takes to dry, as shown by the chart below as a reference.
