Upon arrival remove your plants from their packaging immediately. Post transit, they will need a drink and some sunlight, and likely some loose soil gently brushed off their leaves.

When choosing a place for your new plant you want to consider light and air flow, both are important.

Avoid direct sunlight and full shade, and opt for reflected light or soft filtered sun with plenty of air flow.

When watering your plant, be careful not to overwater in the cooler months and aim for a thorough water every 1–2 weeks.