LONGEST BLOOMING HARDY GERANIUM ROZANNE

The term perennial is reserved for plants that live for more than two years. Horticulturists then further classify them into woody and herbaceous perennials. Woody perennials are whose above ground parts persist over winter, while herbaceous perennials are non-woody plants that die back to the ground each winter. However, the roots survive the winter and the plants re-sprout in the spring. This collection is the herbaceous type, which make them high value plants that will return for years to come with little to no effort.

*Full season of large,
violet-blue blooms*

*Selected as the 2008
